7th October 2014

InfraPPP Advisory Services will advise the Government of Ghana on PPPs in Agriculture

- InfraPPP Advisory Services, as part of an international consortium of leading advisory firms, has been awarded a new contract in Ghana
- InfraPPP will be the leading PPP advisor within the consortium working with the Ghana Commercial Agriculture Project

InfraPPP, the PPP advisory firm launched by two ex-executives of European PPP developers (Ferrovial, FCC and Iridium-ACS) and Strategic Consultancy firms (McKinsey&Company) has been declared the best bidder to develop a PPP Pre-Feasibility study in Ghana

InfraPPP will work together with Spanish engineering firms Tepro Engineering and Inclam.

The project is framed within the Ghana Commercial Agriculture Project (“GCAP”), a US$100m Government of Ghana project, funded jointly by the World Bank and the USAID.

The contract, lasting 5 months and with an approx. value of 400,000 USD, is part of the efforts to develop the commercial agriculture sector in Ghana.

This project will analyze the existing and future needs for warehouses in North Ghana, defining specific PPP solutions to this problem. In the last years, PPP schemes are starting to be utilized in Agriculture, with multilateral donors empowering this new field of development.

Alvaro de la Maza, Partner of InfraPPP, commented: “Ghana represents a unique opportunity for the growth of our firm in Africa. The support given by the World Bank and the USAID, the pipeline of PPP projects with a new PPP law coming very soon, and the political stability of this country, make it a clear priority in our development strategy in the continent”.
